We Can Do Better Than This

He's sure that the funeral could have gone by faster if it weren't for everyone's feelings towards his sudden death. It left a mark on them after he had left. Akashi's gone, he heard a small voice in the back of his head. Move on. "I can't." he says to no one in particular. Even then, he feels like absolute trash. Akashi was in his prime, going from meeting to meeting. He came home on weekends and left on Monday. Except he never came back that week. The crash was an accident.

>"Tetsu, it's about time you moved on, don't you think?" Aomine asked. He rested his head against the shadow's shoulders.

"Okay." He said trying to blink out the tears that threatened to fall.
